Aids are material or medical achievements, which fall into the performance obligation of the health insurance companies. Since April 1, 2007 the German health insurance companies are to acquire contractual partners via an invitation to tender or conclude short-term contracts directly with the contractual partners, where an invitation to tender is not appropriate. Hereby the requirements stated in the list of appliances by the health insurance companies (HMV) with regard to the quality of healthcare and medical products have to be adhered to. The legal basis of the HMV remains unaffected.

But each medical device is not to be automatically regarded as a reimbursable aid. To simplify the account of aids over the health insurance companies in Germany, the aid listing (HMV) has been set up. Simultaneously the proof is to be furnished that the product corresponds to their requirements and quality standards. After a proposed application for admission and a review, the central associations must agree to the admission of the product into the HMV. To get correct composition of the necessary documents, many applicants come across incredible difficulties. This may cause substantial delays and high costs. BEO provides a support, which makes the registration of your aid much easier and faster.
